Other

The license is required to purchase, own, possess or transport explosives. The license is not required for:

- Smokeless powder
- Black powder in quantities of 5 pounds or less used in firing antique firearms, or replicas of antique fire arms

Organizations and businesses applying for a license must designate an officer, owner or partner as the license holder. We cannot issue a license in the name of the organization or business. The organization or business will be licensed when its name is on the application of the designated officer, owner or partner whom we issue the license.

You must have an Explosives Magazine Certificate to store explosives. You can get applications for these certificates from the Division of Safety and Health district office listed in your local telephone directory.

Note: This license does not permit you to act as the blaster in charge or as the operator of a pyrotechnic display. You must have additional certification to engage in those occupations. You can print applications for either of these at <http://www.labor.ny.gov/formsdocs/wp/shformsandpublications.shtm>.
